Previous studies have suggested that OCD has comorbidity with bipolar disorder (BD) (1,2). We evaluated the three bipolar OCD cases.

C1: Because of the OCD symptoms Clomipramine was started. Her OCD symptoms improved in several days but manic symptoms appeared, switched to Lithium Carbonate. In her out patient exams, manic and obsessive compulsive symptoms were almost never observed simultaneously at the course.

C2: In 2003, her complaints started as combined OCD and Manic symptoms, Risperidon and Lithium carbonate were started, manic and OCD symptoms improved. In 2005, OCD and Depressive symptoms appeared together. She got improved with Lithium Carbonate and Clomipramine. She had one episode with obsessive and manic symptoms or obsessive and depressive symptoms every year till now. Her uncle had Depression and her aunt had Bipolar disorder.

symptoms and episodic manic symptoms. His father had M. Depressive episodes.

Conclusion

Our cases suggest that bipolar OCD has episodic course, treatment resistant symptomatology, high family loading and high frequency of recurrence.
